

Published based on German Lessons for Beginners Part 1 - Flirting

German Lessons for Beginners Part 1 - Flirting

German Lessons for Beginners Part 1 - Flirting

(this is hilarious)

In this part of the series we deal with flirting in German. Here the viewers learn to grasp(easily) the subtle use of the German language for the sole purpose of luring the opposite sex whilst holidaying in the father land. The beauty of this sweet talking, delicate and poetic language will touch the very core of your heart and linger within your soul. You will have German girls dropping at your feet or higher. An excellent tool for education. Written, recorded, presented and directed By Nick Myer aka Nicholas Derwent Myer, aka Shakespeare's Maniac. Produced on what most Big Budget movie makers would refer to as, a mobile phone(cell phone). This is a 2007 production. Want more? Want me? Any serious interest other than a fine translation service, contact me. Oh and if you need some background music to play whilst you're carrying out this technique purchase this chill track entitled "Love in Ibiza (Summer Chill Edit)" by The SouL. It's out on itunes from May 4th 2010. Also find it on emusic.com. Why? cos its the only one to play really when using this technique, PLUS the tutor of these perfect German lessons composed it.

You can also find this article published on German Lessons for Beginners Part 1 - Flirting, and on the tag pages Background Music, Budget, Cell Phone, Derwent, Education, German Girls, German Language, German Lessons, Itunes, Maniac, Mobile Phone, Movie Makers, Nick Myer, Poetic Language, Shakespeare, Sole Purpose, Summer Chill, Tool, Translation Service, Tutor.